When we're searching for garden inspiration, we of course turn to our Test Garden pros—along with home and garden shows, Instagram, and our most seasoned neighbors. But lately, we've been scoring innovative ideas surrounding edible gardening and flower gardening from a sort of unexpected place: hotels and resorts.

The typical traveler often factors in features like a property's location, the number of beds in a room, and the on-site spa and restaurant to decide which place to book. However, you might want to start looking at the grounds, because there are some seriously stunning gardens hiding out at hotels and resorts around the world.

You need not be a frequent flier or have vacation time on the horizon to "visit" these spots, but you can always steal a few ideas for your own outdoor space. We're here with your exclusive peek inside. And if you'd like to step inside these stunning images in real life, we'll tell you where to find them and how to book.
