The 39 Best New Luxury Hotels to Visit in 2021

Here, we've curated must-see new properties opening across the globe, from California to Tasmania.

BY MARK ELLWOOD

Travel, at least as we knew it, was on pause for much of this year—and many planned hotel openings delayed by a year or more thanks to the pandemic and slump in demand. As a result, though, 2021 looks to likely to be jampacked with high-end hotel debuts. So we've pulled together the 39 must-see luxury properties opening next year across the world, plus a couple that might even be open in time for New Year's Eve if plans aren't derailed.

Florence, Italy

Opens: March 2021

Rooms from 419 euros per night.

The Palazzo Minerbetti dates back to the 12th century, and sits on one of Florence's main streets after which this new 62-room hotel is named. It occupies four floors of the palazzo, including a rooftop restaurant overlooking the city. Expect top-notch service under the erstwhile GM of Il Pellicano in Porto Ercole.
